Annual Report.

TWENTY-FOURTH

ANNUAL REPORT.

WE herein present the record of the past twelve months, ending April, 1878, as our twenty-fourth annual report.

A year ago we passed through a season of intense anxiety. In one of the stateliest halls of England there is the record upon a certain work of art and beauty that it was "finished in the year of sorrow," thus characterizing the period in which a beloved member of the household had died.

If in like manner we should perpetuate our associations with the years of our work and call the last our year of sorrow, we might with equal justice characterize this as the year of prayer. The experience of those who have worked longest in the Board will give corroborating testimony to the fitness of the appellation. We all recall the pale face and feeble form of one who for almost a lifetime had borne this work daily to the Lord in prayer as the cause nearest to her heart as she rose in her place in the November meeting to tell us in sweet and simple words how that this year more than ever she had besought the blessing of the Lord upon the schools, and urged upon us, her colaborers, to unite with her in being more importunate in seeking God's help.

These were her last words to us. Before the next meeting of the Board the Lord called her to himself, "Where many a prayer of hers had gone before." Her words falling upon us like a parting benediction could not pass unheeded, and as we record the work of the year, shall we not gratefully attribute the measure of our success to the efficacy of prayer.

HOME FOR DESTITUTE CHILDREN,

Stirling Place, between Flatbush and Vanderbilt Avenues.

Two hundred and twenty children have found shelter under this roof during the year. Board has been paid for one hundred and twenty of these, with more or less regularity; twenty-seven are paid for by the county, and the rest have been entirely supported upon the charity of the Association.

We do not turn worthy applicants away so long as we have food to give them and room to accommodate them. The food is very simple, but it is well cooked and wholesome, and the matron is instructed to see that every child is satisfied before it leaves the dining-room. The matron, the teacher and the seamstress are alternately present at each meal to enforce order, and the visitors on the House Committee are requested so to time their visits that they may observe how the children behave at the table, and if their food is properly prepared.

The bright and healthy appearance of the children indicates that they are well cared for and happy. No contagious disease has visited the Home during the past year, and only two deaths have occurred, these being of infants in the nursery.

A boy received a wound from being thrown down by one of his playmates, which the physicians feared might prove fatal, but Ernst is now recovering; as he sat in his rocking-chair before the open fire in the cheerful new hospital room, with a nurse beside him, and the sunlight straying from the pictures upon the walls to the white covers upon the beds, it did not seem as if the term "destitute children" applied to such as he; there may be significance in the fact that it appears upon the outside of our building.

We find with regret that this edifice, large as it looms up when viewed from the exterior, is not well adapted as regards its interior arrangement, to the purposes for which it was designed. Our work is circumscribed both by the want of more room and the inconvenient arrangement of that which we have. One story is lost under the steep roof, for the managers with motherly thoughtfulness for the safety of the children are unwilling to trust them to use the narrow stairway which leads up to that barren waste of unoccupied attic room. We scarcely dare to think that we shall soon be rich enough to enlarge and improve our building, and thus gain the conveniences which are so sorely needed, but we are working to that end, and so we shall in the present as in the past,

"Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait."

THE NURSERY.

There are at present twenty-five children, of five years of age, and younger, in the nursery.

Two infants have been surrendered to the Association ; they are pretty little creatures. We are hoping that some kind loving heart may turn in pity to their motherless condition and offer them homes in nurseries left vacant by the death of some darling of the household. The children are well at present, most of them have been well all winter.

We wish that friends would oftener visit the nursery. Those who at first consent to come from a sense of duty would soon become interested in the little group flocking about you, when you open the door, and welcoming you in the fearless confidence of babyhood accustomed to be kindly met. They can sing you the little hymn "I am so glad that Jesus loves me," unconscious of the blessing they have in that great love of Jesus, or they can sing you the little song about the sparrow, in each case carrying the tune as correctly as if in leadership they had a juvenile Jenny Lind. When the weather is pleasant they are muffled in hoods and coats, and toddle along the sunny side of the street, a funny little group of twenty babies. If you meet them they will cluster about your feet, and look up at you like the little flower faces in a bed of pansies. They may stumble, and come back to the nursery with a scratched nose, but they have compensating roses on their cheeks, with, perhaps, a lesson in bravery learned in that the baby was called "a little man," because he did not cry when he fell.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS.

There are five industrial schools supported by this Association. The children attending are provided each day with their dinner, and in the autumn a complete suit of clothing is given to every child, so that the need of a suitable dress need not be urged as an excuse for staying away from school.

The punctuality of attendance has been an improvement upon that of former years ; there must be, however, some irregularity in this respect in scholars from this class. Like the barometer, they indicate the changes in the weather ; they are attracted by the sunshine to wander about the streets ; they are driven into the school-room by the storms. Thus they come and go as poverty and want supply the motive, or occasional work given to their parents lessens the necessity of depending upon the managers for food.

SCHOOL NO. 1.

Concord Street, opposite junction of Prince Street.

This building and the lots upon which it is situated are the property of the Association. It contains a large airy school-room, with commodious apartments for the matron, and a comfortable dining-room. The neighborhood is a very desirable one, which term when applied to an industrial school means the reverse of that phrase in its ordinary application. There are crowds of ragged little urchins roaming about the streets and houses suggestive of accommodations for a family in every room.

The Visitor and Bible reader for this school says in her report : "The condition of the families is much the same ; all have a great struggle to obtain food, and some get very little. I visited the homes of some new scholars, as I generally do when they first enter the schools, and found them in a wretched condition. The parents were intoxicated, and were quarreling ; they had also given their children liquor to drink ; the boy that came out to see me could scarcely stand," and, oh mothers and fathers, will you not help us to work for these children, the Visitor sadly adds, "the boy was only ten years old."

Of another child the teacher says : "I found he had tobacco in his pockets. He denied at first that he smoked, or chewed, or drank. Finally he admitted that he used tobacco (he is about eight years old), but denied drinking. I did not believe him. I did not tell him so, but I pictured to him the drunkard's career as vividly as I could. I try to be doubly kind to such children."

In the course of the year there have been two hundred and fifteen children attending this school. There are at present ninety names on the roll-book. Five hundred and eighty garments have been given out ; four hundred and sixty of these were new and made up by the Sewing Committee ; one hundred and fifteen pairs of new shoes were presented to the children, and twenty pairs, not new, were given in the course of the winter. Meals were furnished to the number of fourteen thousand three hundred and fifty-seven.

SCHOOL NO. 2.

Fourth Street, near Smith Street.

The building for this School is hired at a yearly rent of three hundred dollars. This locality, like that of School No. 1, has its peculiar advantages for an Industrial School. The gin shops and lager beer saloons in the vicinity send forth their graduates, and schools for vice abound. Christianity must extend its hand and gather the children from these places, for, if they do not take lessons in virtue, they assuredly will in vice.

The number of scholars who have attended this school during the year, as furnished from the roll-book of the teacher, is one hundred and fifty. There are at present one hundred, with an average attendance of eighty; of these, sixty-five can read, the most of whom study arithmetic and geography, and are learning to write, these, in Industrial School gradation, being the "higher grades."

In order to make these children presentable, and to inculcate that love for neatness which they so greatly lack, seven hundred garments have been given out, five hundred of which were new. One hundred and seventy-five pairs of shoes have been furnished, one hundred and twenty pairs of these being new.

We offer a few extracts from the Reports of the teacher, to show the class of children who attend this school: "The father of the — children has been unable to walk for eight years; he lies on his back and makes cigars, and Johnny takes them to New York to sell. The food and clothing given them from the School is all they have."

"Two little girls, whose mother is blind, came to the School. They are very poor. The mother says it is a great comfort to her to listen to her children singing the hymns and repeating verses from the Bible, which they have learned at school. All the clothing they have the ladies have given them."

"A family of five children, whose father died of consumption, attend the School. The mother says she could not support them but for the help furnished by the Managers."

Thus the teacher continues through a list of similar cases, each but a repetition of the same struggle with sickness and poverty, echoing back in their measure a confirmation of the words spoken in Judea, eighteen hundred years ago: "The poor ye have always with you."

SCHOOL No. 3.

In the Chapel of the Home.

The average number of children in attendance in the Home School has been eighty. Their improvement in the past year has not been all that we could desire. We have labored under the disadvantage caused by constant change of teachers; but the School Committee has at length secured the services of a lady whose long experience, united with the Christian enthusiasm which she brings to the work, is almost a sure guarantee that the standard of education will be raised and the discipline of the School will be better than ever before. An assistant teacher has been provided for the younger children, who will in future train them with some interesting kindergarten exercises, not only to the better advancement of the little ones, but leaving the Principal free from distractions during the hours she devotes to her older pupils.

A class of the more advanced scholars were sent to the public school adjoining the Home, but the change was attended with questionable success. They were averse to going. There were always symptoms of a severe epidemic which raged with intermittent energy according to the opening or closing hours of school. Perhaps their schoolmates taunted them with gibes as to the eleemosynary institution from which they came, for children are often, unconsciously, very cruel. The order for their going was revoked, and the children recalled to their own school-room, with the exception of one boy who, from peculiar circumstances in his case, needed the instruction which could be best obtained at the public school. One of the ladies on this School Committee generously provided one dozen silver medals as rewards. "These," says the Matron, "have produced a gratifying improvement in the conduct of the boys and girls among whom there is a commendable strife to bear off the honors."

SCHOOL No. 4.

Formerly 602, at present 607 Warren Street.

The building in which this School was held was found to be so unsuitable and inconvenient that upon the expiration of the lease it was thought desirable to select more commodious rooms. A house in the immediate vicinity has been obtained. The floors occupied by the School are rented for three hundred dollars, and it is hoped that in more comfortable quarters the increased growth of the School will justify the wisdom of the change.

The Reports of the Visitor are nearly a repetition of those given for the other Schools ; they are the reiteration of the old story of a dreary monotony of poverty and discouragement on the part of the parents, and a depressing dependence upon the relief given them. "If it had not been for the aid received in the School," said a poor woman, "my children must almost have starved ; they often go to school without breakfast." Other reports are to the same effect. The number of children in attendance through the year has been one hundred and seventy-nine. There are at present eighty-nine names on the roll-book. Three hundred and fifty-six garments have been distributed in the School, and eighty-eight pairs of shoes given. Twelve thousand, two hundred and fifty-six meals have been provided for the scholars.

The ladies on this Committee, wishing the parents to feel an interest in the improvement of their children, invited them to an entertainment in the school-room; unfortunately the evening proved a stormy one; but the experiment will be repeated, with the view to encourage the parents to send the children more regularly and punctually to school.

SCHOOL No. 5.

Throop Ave., between Myrtle and Flushing Aves.

One hundred and thirteen children have attended this School during the year. Seventy-seven names are at present on the roll-book. Four hundred and forty-one garments have been given out, two hundred and nine of which were new. Eighty pairs of new shoes have been given to the scholars, and forty-three pairs not new.

Thirty nine dollars and thirty-three cents have been contributed towards the expenses of this School by the scholars themselves, through weekly contributions known as "envelope receipts."

This is comparatively a new school, but a great deal has been done to make it a success, and the result has proved very satisfactory. The reports of the Visitor and Bible reader are so full of interest that we transfer them to these pages as accurate pictures of the work of this School Committee :

"A poor woman thus gave the simple expression of pleasure on the part of her little girl who had been received in the School: 'Julie said, we put up our hands to pray, mamma, when school begins, and when we eat our dinner, and when we get through, and before we go home; and oh, it is so nice!'"

"It is very encouraging," continues the Visitor, "to witness the increasing interest in the word of God, and the pleasure manifested in the hymns and texts the children learn. As I contrasted the condition of some of these families with that of a year ago, I felt that we had reason to thank God for what had been wrought through this instrumentality." She then proceeds to give examples, from which we select one. "A woman, who had once been a teacher in a high school in London, we found in almost a starving condition, and in despair over the wants of her children. Her husband, although an educated man, had been brought to his present low condition by intemperance. The children were taken in the School and employment was found for the father. The mother, who is an humble Christian, has expressed much gratitude in contrasting her present condition with that of a year ago, when she was compelled to pick up cinders in the street and present herself as a candidate for County relief.. Some of the pupils in this, as we have before stated of the other Schools, have already acquired habits which are deplorable, and which we can scarcely associate with childhood. "Two of our boys were intoxicated on New Years Day," says the Visitor, "the younger is only six years old!" Another was reported to be in the same condition recently. If there can be any mitigating circumstances in such a case, or any explanation which may be an excuse for the child, we find such in the fact that he was "taught by his grandfather to smoke and chew before he was four years old, and has ever since been associated with those who practice all kinds of vice."

Are we discouraged by reports such as these? On the contrary, they are incentives to work—they show the necessity for just such schools as ours; they are cases in point to show the need of Christian women going into these by-ways and seeking the imperiled little ones. It is just the work that women can do best, and only the love of Christ can induce even kind-hearted women to follow up perseveringly, children, who are only such as to age, who are old in the knowledge of sin—sometimes in the commission of it. Were these alone the sufferers we might look on in placid indifference; but they are aggressive agents, they are not passive. They lead the young and innocent on to sin, and in time they war upon society, they support the drinking saloons, they break our laws and fill our prisons. Can any cause appeal more strongly to a mother's heart? Each year, as it increases our labor, only adds to our enthusiasm, and as we look upon this broad field for the exercise of Christian benevolence, we say, as we truly feel, that this is one of the most important of our city charities.

CHILDREN IN HOMES.

We have received very encouraging letters from and in regard to children who have been placed in family homes. "We love the little one as if she were indeed our own," writes a lady about a little girl who does not know but that it is her own mother whom she calls such.

We have all seen parents who were blind to their children's faults ; the writer of a letter from the West speaks thus of her adopted child: "I think he has as few faults as any child I ever knew. He is very smart, and handsome. He goes to school and learns fast, and can spell and read better than common children of his age." The mother of the child thus referred to is dead, and his father is in prison. The boy, ignorant of this stain, may lead a better life ; guided by the kind mother who has taken him from such companionship, he will be the more likely to do so. A father writes of the boy adopted in his family very much in the same vein : "Tommy stands nearly perfect in all his studies. He only missed five words in his spelling class during three months. The teacher says he is the best scholar of his age in school."

The following letter is so thoroughly characteristic of an energetic boy that we give it entire, verbatim et literatim. The writer was an inmate of the Home until he went West ; he replies once a year to the letters addressed to him, and always in the same vein. He has a prejudice against punctuation, and never makes a pause from first to last ; he is strongly biased in favor of the conjunctions, of which he makes an immoderate use. It is evident that he does not write under the eye of the school-master.

"I have received your welcome letter today and the men is butchering the hogs is fat now and it begins to rain now and they will have a bad time at it now and it will be a good joke on the young folks out here now if it rains we were going to have a oyster supper tonight oysters is scarce out here we have to pay 40 cents a can out here and i have not seen Frank yet when our folks go to mill i will stop and se him and I seen Christopher a week or two ago and he has a good home and I have a good home now and I am going to stay out here I got a letter from my brother and sister and I sent my sister a present and a birthday present and we have a good time and we have a little girl died last night she died with the head complaint and we had a woman died with the consumption and we had bad luck with wemen out here and I have got a saddle and bridle and I paid $2 for it and I am goin to get me a Indian pony and I have got 3 pigs to raise and it will pay for the pony and he will take the road there are lots of them out here but they ask too much for their poneys and I kin get one out here for $30 and we tap some mapple trees out in the timber and we made some mapple suggar so I guess I must close my letter now so good bye."

THE COUNTY WARDS.

We felt acutely a year ago the aspersions from certain quarters cast upon our work. We look back to that period more calmly now, satisfied that while we toil on patiently, and according to the wisdom we have given us, we may leave the results to our Father in Heaven. Joseph Cook says that "the poorest really conscientious life is incalculably better than the acutest worldly sneer concerning it." Assenting to this, we take the reasonable comfort that we may, from the consciousness that we have endeavored with scrupulous care to do our best.

At the time when the County Nursery was abolished this Home and the Eastern District Industrial Home were the two Asylums appointed for the reception of the children of the Protestant poor of Brooklyn. The County Commissioners of Charity now refuse to place children in this Home, even when earnestly requested by the parents to do so. As a result, when a Protestant woman applies to us to support her children, we are cut off from the County aid which is rightfully ours, and, if we take the children, must support them upon the funds of the Association. Thus, while our work is increased our pecuniary resources are not, and we must collect money to support children who ought to be County wards.

There are six Roman Catholic Asylums, in which nine hundred and forty-six children have been placed by the Commissioners of Charity, to be supported by the County. There are but two Protestant Asylums for white Children; in these only seventy-seven are paid for by the County. Is it just that even one of these two should be closed against the Protestant poor?

The Home in the Eastern District is doing an admirable work; we gladly admit its claim. The Managers are intelligent Christian ladies; we cordially extend to them our good wishes. But the poor in the largest section of Brooklyn have a right to ask for the assistance they need here in their own district without being obliged to send their children to Williamsburgh for relief. But we have faith that some day we shall be righted, for now, as ever,

"Standeth God within the shadow, keeping watch above His own."

We have lost by death during the past year, the oldest two of our Managers ; they were the oldest both as to their age and the time of their connection with this Association.

MRS. SHARPE was one of the original incorporators, and had labored zealously for twenty-three years in this cause. Her enthusiastic Christian zeal made her a valuable assistant, and her sweet, loving nature endeared her to all the Managers. We alluded in our opening page to the prayerful spirit she brought to the work ; it seemed fitting that at her last meeting with the Board she should place an earnest prayer for the prosperity of the work as the closing seal upon her labors.

MRS. HILLIARD had been a member of this Association for more than nineteen years. Her sound judgment and practical good sense were ever to be relied upon ; and when we needed advice we appealed to her who was so peculiarly fitted by her age, her experience, and her wisdom, to give it.

Miss E. C. COOK, a Manager recently appointed, has also died during the year. Short as was the period of her connection with the Association, the Committees of School No. 5 had learned to value her services.

The Sewing Committees report for the year that three thousand, eight hundred and seventy-five garments have been made up. Sewing societies belonging to some of the churches, and individual members of churches represented in the Board, have assisted in this work. To such the Managers present their warmest thanks. In order to give some idea of the amount of sewing required, our friends will please observe that all the garments worn by the children at the time of the Fair are presented to them by the School Committees, and that the children at the Home are all clothed by the Managers.

So faithfully has our Matron performed her duties during the past seven years, that we feel it to be a tribute we owe her to acknowledge that we realize how greatly we are favored in having her services. The daughter of a clergyman, her Christian training peculiarly fits her for this responsible situation, and her qualities of heart and mind are such that we can always appeal to her excellent judgment for advice, and to her warm feelings for sympathy.

The children had their usual Christmas dinner both at the Home and at the Schools. There were other festivities which made the holiday week a very pleasant one for them. Twenty of their number were delightfully entertained by Miss Whitcomb, of 196 Clinton street; the teachers of the Sunday School also prepared a Christmas entertainment for them, and Mr. More, of 3d Avenue, cor. of Wyckoff street, very kindly exhibited for their amusement some of his beautiful stereopticon views, which were both instructive and entertaining.

During the Summer no less than forty of the children were invited by Mr Douglas, of the Brooklyn Children's Aid Society, to visit the Sea Side Home and there enjoyed the fresh air and sea bathing for a week.

The Managers acknowledge their obligations to Dr. Edson and Dr. Pratt. Their attendance has not been as frequently required as in some previous years, as there has been no epidemic prevailing; but it may be by attending to their suggestions that the old adage has been verified as to the relative value of prevention and cure.

Mr. F. Loeser sent to the Home a mechanical toy, a doll playing a guitar, to be offered for sale for the benefit of the institution. The children regard this musical prodigy with great admiration, and the Managers feel grateful to Mr. Loeser for his kindness.

During the Fair there were generous contributions made to the refreshment committee, from the congregations of the churches represented by Managers in the Association, and many of the leading merchants in the city sent articles to be sold on the tables. We would here repeat our acknowledgement of such acts of generosity and renew the thanks which we offered at the time.

The thanks of the Board are due to Dr. Brewster who has offered to attend to the dentistry necessary for the children free of charge. Heretofore they have been obliged to pay for such service.

The Managers are grateful to the friend who has engaged a teacher in needle work for the older children at the Home. Lessons are given them three times a week, and their improvement is very observable.

Far be it from us, as we review the work of the year, to record the results in a boastful spirit. We speak of what we have done, because, as the stewards and almoners of the Association, this is the time and the place to report how we have appropriated the funds committed to us, and what success has attended our labors.

In the annual reports of gentlemen, whether on secular or church charities, they confine themselves strictly to concise statements of facts. The privilege of talking has been so generally conceded to ladies that we here appropriate to ourselves what advantages we may derive from that prerogative. Instead of adopting the laconic business report as our model, in most womanly ways we have striven to win your interest in this work ; we have confided to you our anxieties ; we ask for your sympathy, your co-operation and your prayers.

And why? Our personality is hidden ; the individual Manager asks nothing for herself ; but as a Board we are deeply in earnest, and our desire is to help the poor children who rove about the streets of Brooklyn. We want to dissipate the moral darkness in which, as we have shown you, so many of them live. It can only be done by pointing them to Him who is the true light which "lighteth every man that cometh into the world."

It is in the spiritual, as in the natural world—we strive with a thousand lamps to light up the streets of our city, and yet the darkness hangs over it ; but when God brings His one great luminary above the horizon then the darkness is dispelled.

As when God looked upon the light on the morning of creation "He saw that it was good;" so may He look upon the light, as through our feeble instrumentality it dawns upon these children's hearts, and after He has perfected what we have begun, may He accept our work, and looking upon it say "it is good."

Report of the Attending Physicians to the Home,

FOR THE YEAR ENDING APRIL 24th, 1878.

WITH the close of another year the duty of reporting the medical management of the Home again devolves on the attending Physicians. It is with pleasure that they report the condition of the Home for the entire year as regards the health of the inmates and the hygienic state of the building as most gratifying. Minor ailments, incident to children, have from time to time occurred, but there are no outbreaks of any disease in epidemic form, and no serious injuries by accident, to report. There are at present no cases of sickness in the Hospital. Such a record for a twelvemonth, for an institution having in its care so many children as the Home, speaks in emphatic tones of

- 1st, Intelligent oversight and care of those placed in charge.
- 2d, Suitable food, both in quantity and quality.
- 3d, Adequate breathing room and ventilation in the dormitories.
- 4th, Pure air throughout the building.
- 5th, Cleanliness.

For, without a combination of these sanitary requisites the children could not have had a year with such unusual freedom from disease as during that just closed.

Respectfully submitted,

WILLIAM H. B. PRATT, M.D.

BENJAMIN EDSON, M.D.

HINTS TO MANAGERS.

Church Collections should be paid into the Treasurer on or before the first Tuesday in April, by check, if possible. Subscription lists should be handed to her at the same time. They should be written plainly, on one side only of the paper.

In case of several Managers collecting from the same Church, one of them should put the several lists together, after the manner of the foregoing, paying special attention to having initials and spelling of the names correctly given.
